NORTHERN TRIBUNE

NORTHERN TRIBUNE.
SATURDAY, JULY 17, 1880.
IMPORTANT ARREST.
A Noted Pennsylvania Desperado Caged.
For some three weeks a quiet, com monplace looking stranger has been around the village. Where so many strangers are constantly seen, this was nothing unusual. The purpose of his visit to Cheboygan was developed last Saturday evening in the arrest of a man, who, it is claimed, is a fugitive from justice and one who will in all probability, forfeit his life upon the scaffold.

About the middle of last April a man named Henry English, a reputed outlaw, guilty of innumerable crimes was being pursued by the sheriff of Elk county, Pennsylvania, and a posse of officers, and being run into close quarters.

J. R. Thomas, a detective, was detailed to hunt him up. This might have been a difficult job but for a letter that English wrote from this section, to some of his friends, and which fell into the hands of Mr. Thomas, who at once started to find his man.

Arriving here about three weeks since, he made known his business to Under Sheriff Paquette, who at once entered into the matter with his usual determination and energy. The detective brought photographs of the much wanted man and from these Mr. Paquette gained a idea of his looks. After careful investigation they located their man in the employ of Vincents, fishing, with headquarters on Bois Blanc island. After patient waiting Mr. Paquette spotted his man in John Hannan's saloon Friday evening of last week, and after satisfying himself that it was the man wanted, he went to inform Mr. Thomas of the fact and it was designed to arrest him that evening, but during the absence of Mr. Paquette the man left the saloon and could not be found that evening.

It has since been ascertained that he slept down by the river that night Saturday evening he was discovered and arrested on the corner near F. C. McDonald's grocery. Knowing him to be a desperate character, Sheriff Paquette made arrangements for assistance and had it close at hand in case it should have been necessary, but the arrest was so quickly that before the prisoner was made was hardly aware of it. He was adorned with the bracelets. They took him to the Town Hall where he was stripped and examined and the result showed that he had passed through some pretty close calls as he had numerous scars on his person. The prisoner is a large and very powerful man and it is said was the terror of that portion of arrested he was told that a robbery had been committed in Detroit and he was suspected of being connected with it. He seems to take his arrest very quietly and talks but little, and doubtless like many a politician, has come to the conclusion that letter writing is a bad thing. The arrest is the most important one ever made here and reflects great credit upon the detective and Under Sheriff Paquette.

The ladies of the Congregational church have made arrangements with Capt. Kirtland to give a grand moonlight excursion, for the benefit of the church, next Monday evening upon the Leviathan, should the weather be pleasant, if not, then it will be given the first pleasant evening thereafter. The programme as arranged is for the Levis than to leave McArthur, Smith & Co.'s dock at 8 o'clock sharp, call at Dunca City end then proceed up the straits, pass around Mackinac island and return, calling at Duncean City. The fare for the trip has been placed at the low sum of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. With the well-known reputation of Capt. Kirtland and the crew of the Leviathan, for looking after the care and comfort of a party, we see no reason why this trip should not prove quite enjoyable, and we predict a large turnout on the occasion to enjoy the delightful ride and the cool and invigorating air. The object is a worthy one, and of itself should be sufficient to attract

Sault Canal Business of June.
The large increase of business through the canal noted for the month of May over any previous year, was hardly kept up through the month of June, although there was a fair month's business. A sudden expansion of freight rates from Chicago on grain, had the effect of drawing a large number of vessels from this

The number of passages for the month of June just passed was 461, tonnage 275,250, tolls, $7,887.24. Last year the same month there were 275,250 passages, 410, tonnage 273,285, tolls $6,903.93. Compared with last year there is an increase of 51 in passages, 1,900 in tonnage and a decrease in tolls is accounted for by the fact that there was no toll on the 1st of the month.

Jenny, secretary of State, a table showing the total yield and the average yield of the several counties in the state compiled from the reports of the assessors at the time they made their reports last spring. From the table showing the result in the counties in this section of the state it is seen that Cheboygan county is at the head of the list as to average

The harbor has recommended for a tug harbor, to be done this season, of about fifty feet wide and fifteen feet deep, to be dredged from the straits into the harbor, for the accommodation of steam vessels; also to straighten river opposite the steamboat dock and carry the channel as far up as the straits permit.

The Old Story.

One morning sunlight looked in through the silken curtains, lighting up as with an angel's smile, and enveloping the face of it occupied strange brightness and waving her pale brown hair into waves

"I found you from the garden where I used to seek you. Summer will be here with her roses almost as soon as the lilies are in bloom. I shall be waiting the maiden coming with her roodless hands in the sunbeam, and a little weak; I shall soon be out to greet you-to-morrow I was just planning how I should be glad to see you you peeped in. Are my lilies up -Yes, your lilies are up; I have tried them warning them. I have and the sunlight, as he noticed the morning coming in. I shall be to-morrow if you are not in the
 "—and silently withdrew, leaving the sunbeam alone in the gloom.
 hours later the moonlight stole through the silken curtains and the moonlight stole through the silken curtains and the moonlight

He said the moonlight, as they walked, was on the pallid brow, and then gently on her hand on the pulseless heart, as she shudderingly whispered, as he shudderingly rushed, "I am dying, I am dying." It is the old, old story of a young man. How she flatters her victims, combining with hope's honied words, evening makes them the prey of a fever! Statistics show that one out of five of the young men die, for the greater part are young men between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five, in the dawn of manhood and youth. For many years, consumption has generally been believed to be incurable, and many a man has died of this disease has already admitted its conquest to her list of conquered. Surge's Golden Medical Discovery cures this disease if resorted to in time.
